

Increase in home working exemption

HMRC has announced that it will increase the tax and NIC free guideline rate employers can pay home working employees without keeping records from £2 to £3 per week with effect from 6 April 2008.

This does not prevent an employee being paid more but records will need to be kept of the expenses incurred.